Background

Objectives

This two days workshop is designed to provide professionals of oil and gas companies, national authorities, service providers, the supply industry and standardisation organisations with the opportunity to broaden their understanding of international standardisation and standards activities for this globally important sector.

The first day will review and discuss the international and national standardisation work, the role of the standardisation bodies in the ongoing international standardisation and the experiences within countries and regions of adopting such standards within the oil & gas sector, including the challenges facing international standards harmonization.

The second day of the workshop will focus on particular issues related to the standardisation, manufacture, quality control and application of oil country tubular goods in order to improve the understanding of its use in the oil & gas industry.

Key Benefits

- 1) Provide an overview of the International Standardization process with particular focus on the efforts/work and products arising out of ISO TC67 for materials, equipment and offshore structures for the petroleum and petrochemical industries and review the challenges related to the production and adoption of international standards.
- 2) Provide an up to date overview on the importance and benefits of standardisation in oil & gas industry and explore the activities and experiences of international, regional, national and company standardisation in this field and how Mexico can participate and influence the international standards.
- 3) Identify and define the oil & gas sector standardisation needs within the Mexican region and the role of international and industry standards in this regard.
- 4) Develop a clear picture on the benefits of adoption of global standards in countries and regions and identify the difficulties facing international standardisation and suggest effective solutions in this regard.
